

Morris, Manning & Martin Ranks Among Top Law Firms for Captive Insurance

Morris, Manning, & Martin Listed Among “Best Captive Law Firms” in Recent Survey

Atlanta (June 1, 2006)—Morris, Manning & Martin, LLP is named one of the top captive insurance law firms by Reactions magazine’s Captive Survey 2006. The survey, published in the May issue of Reactions, recognized six “Best Captive Law Firms,” only three of which are located in the United States.

“We have been handling all legal aspects of captives, including tax, for a number of years and are pleased to have this recognition from the international insurance community,” says Robert H. “Skip” Myers, Jr., a Partner in Morris, Manning & Martin’s Insurance Group.

The survey predicts that the number of companies offering captive insurance is on the rise due to the increased instability of the traditional insurance industry. According to Captive.com, companies are finding that captive insurance has the potential to reduce the expense of risk management, stabilize pricing, provide coverage for areas previously uncovered, boost cash flow benefits and reduce government regulations and obstacles.

Companies are also finding that captive insurance provides customized insurance plans and streamline claims handling processes. They are also taking notice of the increased access to reinsurers through captives. According to the survey, implementing captive insurance programs is easier than ever, especially for small and medium-sized companies.

Morris, Manning & Martin has emerged as a leading firm to offer guidance and legal counsel in this specialized area. Myers has become an important resource for companies seeking insight into captive insurance issues by leading seminars, association meetings and conferences. He has published numerous articles on captive insurance issues. His practice also includes the areas of insurance regulation, antitrust and trade association law.

Reactions magazine describes itself as the leading monthly magazine that provides detailed, global coverage of the insurance and reinsurance industries. The magazine explores how the world’s businesses, insurers and reinsurers cope with and transfer risk, and looks at the concerns facing senior executives at insurance and reinsurance companies.
